University of Delhi is an autonomous body, rules/instructions issued by the Government for its employees are not ipso-facto applicable to the employees of the University.

(b) and (c) The University of Delhi has constituted a Welfare Fund for the benefit of the non-teaching employees of the University and its constituent and affiliated colleges/institutions out of which financial assistance, normally not exceeding three months' pay, is available to the widows and dependents of the deceased employees of the University and its colleges. This assitance may be increased upto six months' pay in extreme cases of hardship. This benefit is, however, available only in respect of such employees who are members and are subscribing to the said Welfare Fund.
